TOP REASONS TO VISIT INDIA

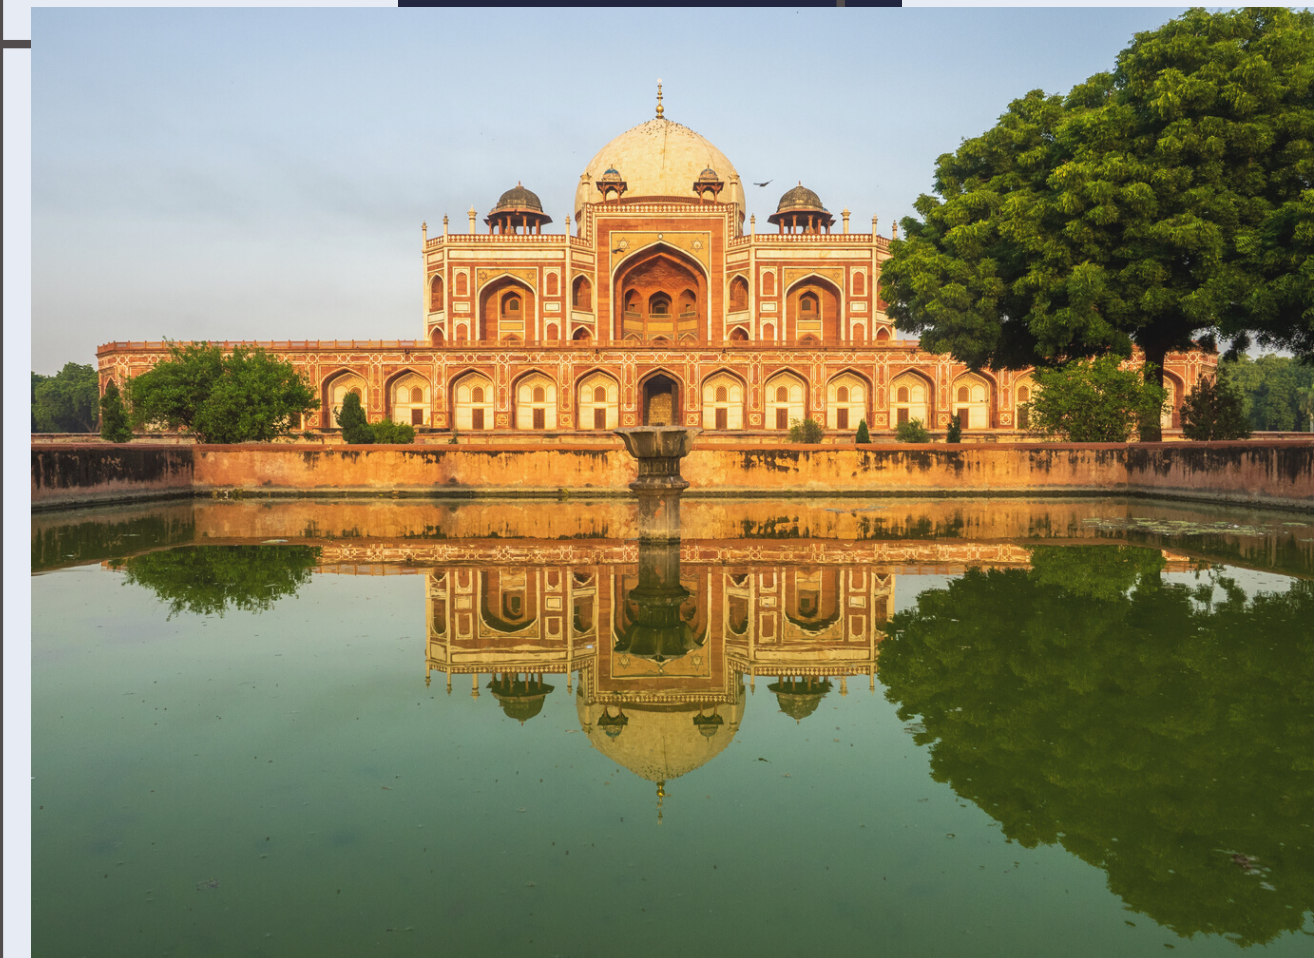

- India is the oldest living civilisations on Earth.
- India, it is often said, is not a country but a continent. From north to south and east to west, the people are different, the languages are different, and the country is different. Plunge into the diversity.
- India is a one-stop destination with mountains, rivers, jungles, beaches, deserts, exotic forts and palaces, exquisite monuments - undoubtedly one of the most diverse nations in the world.
- Where else in the world can you get the special royal welcomes, gala theme evenings, camel safaris in the desert, luxurious accommodation, entertaining cultural shows, dining with royalty a plethora of specials to choose from!!
- "The Taj Mahal is the most recognisable building in the world and arguably the most beautiful," writes Telegraph Travel's India expert, Gill Charlton, in her guide to visiting it. "The architecture is sublime but it is the story that the stones embody that draws seven million visitors each year."
- Partake in the slice of history when you actually stay in one of the many heritage properties of India. Live like a Mughal king in one of India's former palaces, many of which have since been converted into lavish hotels.
- The wildlife is incredible :excursion to one of the country's many national parks, where visitors can see everything from tigers and elephants to rhinos and rufous-bellied hawk eagles. Notable parks include Ranthambore, Pench, Kanha and Bandhavgarh.
- The sandy beaches of Andaman in search of solitude, natural beauty and adventure. It is said that the Andaman Island is home to 270 species of birds including migratory and endemic birds.
- Charting the coach on the train of Darjeeling Himalayan Railway is a living heritage. It was conferred UNESCO World Heritage in the year 1999.
- Darjeeling is after all the Mecca of tea and sprawling estates producing what we know as the "Champagne of Teas" to the delight of the world.
